CHILDREN HELP PARENTS IN STRIKE BY LIVING AWHILE WITH FRIENDS OF UNION CAUSE IN N. Y.

Some of the hundreds of children sent from Lawrence, Mass., to New York city, where friends and union sympathizers will care for them during the desperate struggle of the mill hands for justice. It was either exile or starvation at home.

New York, Feb. 21.—Children of Lawrence strikers who have been sent here to relieve their parents are having a grand time in the homes of unionists who have taken them temporarily.

Labor leaders deny that they have been sent without full permission of their parents and are not moved by threats of arrest by Col. Sweetser at Lawrence, who charges "kidnaping" has been indulged in to harass some of the mills where children were employed.

Clemence Vervack is a little girl who came to New York with the first "consignment."

Clemence was allotted to Mrs. Catherine Hopfer, Evergreen, L. I., but as she was starting away she saw another yellow-haired
